TO MR. LACHLAN M'ALISTER, OF CLIFTON.

SIR,—I take this public way of informing you that I will not receive any more of your very ungentlemanly and grossly insulting letters; and I request that you will cease such unmanly correspondence, unmanly in this respect, that you adopt the deception of having the address put upon your letters by some other parties. If you feel disposed to continue your correspondence, I would take it kind were you to do so through the medium of the public press. But if you persevere in annoying me for the future with your private letters, I will give publicity to those literary specimens of yours already in my possession.

ROYAL MARINE HOTEL,

S. R. flatters himself that families and gentlemen will find in his house all they can desire, having been fitted up with an adjoining Cottage for their use. To invalids it offers many advantages, for it is within three minutes' walk of the Steam-boat and also the sea-beach; the views from its verandahs are most enchanting—Mounts Keera and Kembla in front and the sea and Five Islands in the rear.

S. Russell, to induce parties to remain in his establishment, the Brighton of Sydney, for health and recreation, is determined to make his charges moderate.

Wines and English bottled beer of excellent quality and low prices. Visitors from Sydney may reckon on also finding accommodation in his house, there being six sitting-rooms and nine bed-rooms. Charges per head for ladies and gentlemen, with every comfort studied, two guineas per week each; allowance made for children according to ages.

Saddle horses and carriages on hire; also good stabling and excellent paddocks.

N.B.—S. R. begs to inform the public that they will soon have their choice of conveyance, as there is a carriage road now rapidly progressing. Visitors will also please to observe that the Steam-boat leaves Sydney for Wollongong every Wednesday morning and Saturday evening. 7766

DISORDER OF THE LIVER AND KIDNEYS.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. J. K. Heydon, dated 78, King-street, Sydney, New South Wales, the 30th September, 1847.

To Professor Holloway.

Sir,—I have the pleasure to inform you that, Stuart A. Donaldson, Esq., an eminent Merchant, and also a Magistrate of the Territory, called on me on the 18th instant, and purchased your medicines to the amount of FOURTEEN POUNDS to be forwarded to his sheep stations in New England. He stated that one of his Overseers named Roy, had come to Sydney some time previously for medical aid, his disorder being an affection of the Liver and Kidneys, and that he had placed the man for three months under the care of one of the best Surgeons, without any good resulting from the treatment. The man then in despair used your Pills and Ointment, and much to his own and Mr. Donaldson's astonishment, was completely restored to his health by their means. Now, this surprising cure was affected in about ten days.

BUY LAVERS AND CO.'S PASTE BLACKING.

NO one desirous of promoting the prosperity of this colony should treat the above advice with indifference, under the impression that his individual consumption of blacking is trifling, and that it can matter little to the community whether it be made in the colony or imported.

IT IS A FACT

That if each inhabitant uses on an average one penny worth of blacking PER MONTH! the quantity annually consumed in the colony amounts in value to upwards of

TEN THOUSAND POUNDS!!!

J. V. LAVERS AND CO. pledge themselves the above article is equal to any blacking imported; is far more portable, and can without trouble, be converted into liquid blacking at one-third of the cost of the latter. It is made from materials produced by colonial industry, and deserves to be supported by all.

The attention of

COUNTRY BUYERS

Is particularly directed to this advertisement as by the introduction of paste blacking instead of liquid, the carriage on this article will be reduced to a sum merely nominal.

"Sworn to no Master, of no Sect am I."

SPEECH OF SIR W. MOLESWORTH ON THE COLONIES.

ABLE and instructive as is the speech delivered by the hon. baronet, the member for Southwark, in the House of Commons, on 25th July last,* its extraordinary length will have deterred many of our readers from giving it a thorough perusal. The facts with which it teems, and the views of colonial policy which it presents, are, however, so extremely valuable, that a condensed summary of its more important results will, we think, be generally acceptable.

The grand object of the speaker is to show, that by leaving the colonies to govern themselves, the mother country would effect a saving, in her own colonial expenditure, of some two millions a year; and that in so doing she would at once accelerate the prosperity of her colonial empire, and enhance its value to herself as a market for her produce and an outlet for her population.

But he first shows, by a masterly array of facts, what the colonial empire of Great Britain is:—That, exclusively of the East Indies, it contains an area of between four and five millions of square miles,—equal to the whole of Europe and British India added together; that it comprises forty different colonies; and yet that its population does not exceed five millions of souls, of whom only one million six hundred thousand are of English, Irish, or Scotch descent. As a customer, this empire absorbs of British produce and manufactures about nine millions worth per annum; and as a dependency, it costs her four millions per annum, besides another four millions paid by the colonies themselves.

The four millions expended yearly upon her colonies, by Great Britain, is stated to be in the following proportions:—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Military........ | £2,500,000 } | £3,500,000 |
| Naval ......... | 1,000,000 } | |
| Civil ........ ............ | | 300,000 |
| Extraordinary ............ | | 200,000 |
| | | £4,000,000 |

Setting against this expenditure the nine millions returned to her by the colonies in payment for her exports of merchandise, the result arrived at is, that for every pound's worth of goods that her merchants send to her colonial dependencies, the nation pays nine shillings. And the question is asked: "What are the advantages we derive from our colonial possessions?" They are supposed to be useful either for political or for commercial purposes; and the speaker accordingly divides them into two classes—the Military, and the Commercial.

And first, as to the Military Colonies. These are, Heligoland, Gibraltar, Malta, the Ionian Islands, Bermuda, the stations on the West Coast of Africa, St. Helena, the Cape of Good Hope, the Mauritius, Hongkong, Labuan, and the Falkland Islands. They are called the outposts of the British empire, and are considered to be useful in periods of war for purposes of aggression. 'But it appears to me,' says SIR WILLIAM, "that most of them are so far removed from the centre of the empire, that in times of war they would be sources of weakness and not of strength; for they would compel us, contrary to every sound principle of warfare, to scatter instead of concentrating our forces. Therefore, in the event of a serious struggle, they would, like other outposts, be abandoned to their fate."

These twelve military stations and Ceylon employ 22,000 troops, besides 93 ships of war with a complement of 18,000 men; the former costing Great Britain at least £1,300,000 a year, and the latter a million and a half, or together £2,800,000. By sundry retrenchments and alterations pointed out in the speech, it is shown that there might here be a reduction of not less than a million a year.

Next, as to the Commercial Colonies. These have been planted in North America, the West Indies, and Australasia. From these the parent country no longer derives the advantages, real or supposed, formerly secured to her by commercial monopoly and the navigation laws. To monopoly, free trade has succeeded; and the last relic of the old colonial system, in the shape of the navigation laws, is about to perish. "Our colonies," adds the speaker, "are free to trade with whom they will. Therefore, they will only trade with us when they can do so more profitably than with other countries. Therefore, as far as trade is concerned, the colonies are become virtually independent states, except that they may not enact laws to restrain their inhabitants from buying from us, or selling to us, if it be for their interest so to do." Then it follows that all the commercial benefit which Great Britain derives from the sums she expends on colonial dominion, consists in the power which she thereby possesses of averting the possibility of the colonies enacting hostile tariffs against her produce and manufactures. The amount of this benefit, it is argued, must evidently depend upon the value of her export trade to the colonies. And on this head the following facts are adduced.

By the latest return, it appears that the value of the exports of British produce and manufactures to the three groups of her commercial colonies, North America, West Indies, and Australasia, is about six millions per annum. But then the direct expenditure of Great Britain, on account of these colonies, is given at two millions per annum. And the honorable baronet asks: "Now, is it worth our while to spend a couple of millions a-year to guard against the possibility of a diminution in our export trade of six millions a-year? I put this question to any mercantile man: would it be worth his while to pay 6s. 8d. in the pound on the value of his goods, to secure that those goods shall freely compete with the goods of other nations in the markets of the North American, West Indian, and Australasian colonies? And if it be not worth his while, is it worth our while to pay it for him?"

The heads of British expenditure per annum on these colonies are stated thus:—

| | |
|---|---|
| North American— | |
| Military force, 9000 men. | |
| Military expenditure .......... | £698,000 |
| Civil ditto........ ........... | 34,000 |
| Miscellaneous ditto........... | 68,000 |
| Total............ | £800,000 |
| West Indian— | |
| Military force, 6000 men. | |
| Military expenditure .......... | £513,000 |
| Civil ditto.................... | 74,000 |
| Miscellaneous ................ | 7,000 |
| Total............ | £594,000 |
| Australian (including New Zealand)— | |
| Military force, 5000 men. | |
| Military expenditure ......... | £270,000 |
| Civil ditto........ ... ...... | 30,000 |
| Total............ | £300,000 |

Hence it appears that in the Commercial colonies, the military force amounts to about 20,000 men, costing Great Britain about £1,481,000 per annum; while the civil and miscellaneous expenditure, also defrayed out of Imperial funds, is about £213,000. To these sums, however, the speaker adds the amounts of extraordinary grants and loans (never to be repaid!) which have been made, or are about to be made, to the West Indian, South Australian, and New Zealand colonies; bringing the aggregate expenditure up to two millions per annum.

The reductions which Sir WILLIAM MOLESWORTH proposes to effect in colonial expenditure, and the advantages which he anticipates from such a course of retrenchment, must occupy our attention hereafter.

* Given at full length in our Supplement of Saturday last.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—TUESDAY.

BEFORE His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson, and a Jury of four.

HAYES AND ANOTHER v. SIMPSON.

This was an action brought by the plaintiffs, tailors, to recover the value of clothes supplied to the defendant; the amount claimed being some £13 2s. It was proved not only that the clothes had been delivered to the defendant, but that he promised to pay the amount now claimed. For the defendant, it was said that he was only a youth, and might have availed himself of the plea of infancy, but would not do so. It would be shown that the defendant had given a note in payment of a part of the bill, namely, for £5 16s. 6d., and which he had pleaded had been indorsed to some one unknown. If this were proved, the amount would be reduced under £10, and the plaintiffs would not get costs. One of the plaintiffs, Mr. Smithers, was called, who admitted that the defendant had given a promissory note for the amount of £5 16s. 6d., which was overdue, and had not been indorsed away nor paid.

The Jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, for the amount claimed.

Mr. Fisher appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Darvall for the defendant. Attorneys for the plaintiffs, Messrs. Allen and Son; and for the defendant, Mr. Dillon.

SMETHURST v. HINCHEY.

From the opening of Mr. Lowe in this case, it appeared that the plaintiff was a shoemaker, and the defendant a tanner, and that the cause of action arose upon a breach of contract entered into by the plaintiff and defendant, viz., that the defendant would tan from time to time skins to be delivered to him for that purpose. The declaration alleged that the skins were delivered to the defendant, but he so negligently performed his contract, that those he tanned were useless, to the great damage of the plaintiff. A further cause of action arose from the defendant having sold a portion of the plaintiff's skins to other parties, and the money obtained for them by the defendant the plaintiff sought as money had and received to his use. The defendant, by his pleas, denied the contract, and that the skins were not delivered to the plaintiff in the declaration alleged. The defence it was said had been anticipated to be of this nature, that the contract alluded to was made by the son of the defendant, and not by the defendant; but it was alleged that if the plaintiff, at the time of the entering into the contract, imagined that he was dealing with the son as a principal, and did not discover until afterwards that he was only an agent, the action might be maintained either against the agent or principal, which ever he might select to go against. The plaintiff's son was called, who proved the contract entered into between the plaintiff and the son of the defendant. The plaintiff delivered thirty-five dozen calfskins, forty hides, and five dozen of other skins, made up of goat and kid, dog and cat skins. Conversations had between the witness and the defendant relative to the tanning the hides, and when on the premises where the tanning was going on, were detailed, and on one occasion the defendant said he was master there. That he saw some skins that had been sent to the defendant afterwards at Soole's, the saddler, being easily recognised from a private mark. Some of the skins sent to be tanned were returned by the defendant as tanned, but were not properly tanned, and in that state were almost worthless; but the majority had never been returned at all.

Another witness proved that the defendant had said he found the money to carry on the tannery; but, upon cross-examination, said that he had seen the defendant's son receive money at the tannery in the presence of the defendant for tanning, which he put into his own pocket, and appeared to have the management of the establishment; further that he was present when the contract declared upon was made, but the defendant's name was not mentioned. Another witness proved that the defendant said that all the property on the premises were theirs, meaning the defendant and his son's. Other witnesses were called, but did not carry the case further to make out that the defendant was liable on the contract.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL (with whom was Mr. BROADHURST) said on behalf of the defence, that the learned counsel for the plaintiff had anticipated the defence; the weight of evidence already adduced proved that the plaintiff did not enter into the contract declared upon with the defendant. The evidence established that the contract was solely entered into with the son of the defendant; the son might be liable upon it, but not the father. The defendant, unless he were a partner with the son, or who was to have some profit in the contract, could not be liable. Doubtless the defendant may have shown anxiety in the business of the son; but that anxiety was easier to be accounted for, considering the relationship between them. To show that the defendant had nothing to do with the tannery in question, the defendant's son was called, who said that his father was a butcher; that he carried on business in Pitt-street; that he, the witness, carried on the tannery on his own account, and that his father had not the slightest interest in it. It was true he borrowed money occasionally from him. Other witnesses were also called to prove the same fact, that the defendant's son was regarded and dealt with as the sole owner of the tannery, and in further support of this position, the lease from the landlord of the tannery in question was produced and proved, and it was in favour of the defendant's son, and not to the defendant. To rebut this evidence, and more especially to contradict the evidence of the defendant's son, letters were adduced and read, written to Mr. Alderman Wilshire and the plaintiff himself, in both of which the son alluded to his father, the defendant, as being the owner of the premises, and indeed he signed them merely on behalf of his father.

His HONOR summed up shortly to the Jury, telling them, that if upon the evidence they felt satisfied that the plaintiff dealt with the son as the agent of the defendant, or as a partner of the defendant, and they were satisfied that there had been a partnership, then they would find for the plaintiff with damages, for the breach of the agreement. But if they found that the son was not a partner of the defendant, nor an agent of his, but dealing on his own account, then the defendant would be entitled to a verdict.

The Jury retired for a few minutes, and found a verdict for the plaintiff—damages, £68 15s.

Attorneys for the plaintiff, Messrs Thurlow and Grant; and for the defendant, Mr. Yeomans.

The Court was then adjourned until eleven o'clock to-day, at which hour all jurymen and witnesses were requested to attend.

The Banco Court will sit at ten o'clock for the purpose of delivering judgments in the following cases:—Barrett v. Tooth, Smith v. Salting, and Ryan v. Pickering.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

COPY of a Despatch from Governor Sir C. A. Fitz Roy, to Earl Grey, in transmitting the Blue Book for 1846, with the Report thereon:

Government House, Sydney,
May 27, 1847.

My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit herewith the Blue Book of this colony for the year ended 31st December, 1846; and in compliance with the instructions contained in the Secretary of State's Despatch, No. 101, of the 5th of May, 1842, I proceed to offer such observations upon the condition of the colony as may be interesting to your lordship.

Taxes, Duties, &c. (pp. 1-15).

The total revenue derived from the duties on spirits, imported as well as made in the colony was in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845.... .......... | 107,056 | 17 | 4 |
| 1846 .. ............ | 86,037 | 9 | 3 |

This decrease has arisen from the reduction in the duties on spirits under the Act 9th Victoria, No. 20. The ad valorem duties remain as last reported; but their amount is progressively improving with the recovering prospects of the colony. They produced in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 .............. | 19,471 | 0 | 2 |
| 1846 ............... | 27,779 | 15 | 4 |

The duties on tobacco produced in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 48,990 | 3 | 2 |
| 1846 ............... | 53,400 | 12 | 1 |

The wharfage and harbour dues amounted in 1846 to £6592 7s. 10d.; but by the local Act 10th Victoria, No. 11, all wharfage dues payable direct to the Government are abolished from the 1st January, 1847, the Governor being authorised to let, by public auction, the wharfage or tonnage rates receivable at the public wharves, such rates not to exceed those mentioned in the 8th Victoria, No. 16, and the rates of wharfage at private wharves not to exceed those charged at public wharves.

Post Office (pp. 222-334).

The revenue produced by the Post Office, although considerable, has not hitherto added much to the general revenue of the colony, owing to the causes specified by my predecessor in his Report on the Blue Book for 1845, namely, the great extent of the colony and the dispersed state of the population.

The revenue was in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 18,001 | 11 | 6 |
| 1846 ............... | 17,924 | 13 | 3 |

The expenditure—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 16,335 | 13 | 4 |
| 1846 ............... | 16,165 | 15 | 7 |

The Act of the Imperial Parliament (7th and 8th Victoria, c. 49) placing the Post Office under the direction of the Postmaster-General in England, is not yet in operation.

The local Act (2nd Victoria, No. 27), under which the assessment on stock depastured on Crown lands was levied, expired on the 30th of June, 1846. The amount received for the first six months of that year was £17,918 15s. 7d.; and nothing in the shape of assessment on stock has since then been received.

The fees on licenses to occupy Crown lands, and to cut timber, which are part of the Crown revenue, produced in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 31,790 | 2 | 6 |
| 1846 ............... | 39,724 | 18 | 1 |

Fees of Office (pp. 15-41).

The revenue derived from fees of office was, in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 9,479 | 11 | 0 |
| 1846 ............... | 10,931 | 18 | 10 |

The fees taken in the Insolvent Court and in the Courts of Request, which in 1845 and 1846 were applied to defray the expenses of those Courts, will, in 1847, be again carried to the general revenue, the Legislative Council having, in their second session of 1846, voted (as a supplement to schedule A of the Constitutional Act, 5th and 6th Victoria, c. 76) the funds necessary for the maintenance of these Courts. These fees amounted in 1844 to—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Insolvent Court........ | 2088 | 19 | 0 |
| Courts of Requests .... | 4413 | 4 | 10 |
| | £6502 | 3 | 10 |

The fees taken in all the Courts of Justice have greatly decreased. In the Supreme Court, in Sydney, they were in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1842 ............... | 14,460 | 15 | 7 |
| 1845 ............... | 5,045 | 9 | 8 |
| 1846 ............... | 4,530 | 0 | 6 |

Revenue and Expenditure (pp. 41-105).

The accounts of the colony are made up in accordance with the principles laid down in the Constitutional Act, 5th and 6th Victoria, c. 76.

The ordinary revenue, that is to say, the revenue derived from taxes, duties, rates, and imposts, was in the year—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 283,945 | 16 | 2 |
| 1846 ............... | 270,550 | 9 | 9 |

Therefore the revenue of 1845 exceeded that of 1846 by £13,395 6s. 5d.

The expenditure chargeable on the ordinary revenue was in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 251,087 | 10 | 11 |
| 1846 .... .......... | 254,177 | 4 | 1 |

Therefore the expenditure of 1845 was less than that of 1846, by £3089 13s. 2d.

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| And the ordinary revenue of 1846 being ...... | 270,550 | 9 | 9 |
| And the expenditure ........ | 254,177 | 4 | 1 |
| The revenue of 1846 exceeded the expenditure by ........ | £16,373 | 5 | 8 |

Crown Revenue.

The following is a statement of the Crown revenue for 1846—

Territorial—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Land sold ............... | 27,060 | 15 | 7 |
| Quit rents ............... | 7,296 | 1 | 7 |
| Depasturing licenses ........ | 38,943 | 18 | 1 |
| Timber ditto .... .......... | 781 | 0 | 0 |
| Rents, leases, &c., within the boundaries.............. | 4,566 | 4 | 10 |
| | 78,648 | 0 | 1 |
| Casual revenue ............ | 3,060 | 2 | 1 |
| Total ............... | £82,708 | 2 | 2 |

The charges on the same revenue for 1846 were—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Survey and management...... | 13,381 | 1 | 4 |
| Aborigines ............... | 2,062 | 10 | 11 |
| Immigration ............... | 1,782 | 19 | 8 |
| Interest on debentures ...... | 7,383 | 15 | 0 |
| Miscellaneous ............. | 1,682 | 19 | 11 |
| Debentures paid off.......... | 9,500 | 0 | 0 |
| | £35,793 | 6 | 10 |

There is a balance, therefore, on the Crown revenue of £46,914 15s. 4d., applicable towards the paying off of the remaining outstanding debentures.

Convict Expenditure (pp. 105-117).

The expenditure under this head continues to decrease; it was in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 31,582 | 10 | 0 |
| 1846 ............... | 27,713 | 4 | 9 |

The number of convicts in the colony, according to the Blue Book for 1846, is 11,271, being a decrease on the previous year of 5572.

Local Revenues (pp. 117-125).

The local revenues of the city of Sydney amounted in 1846 to £9022 18s. 4d., those of the town of Melbourne to £5140 14s. 11d.

The District Councils are in the same state of abeyance and inaction, and require no report.

Military Expenditure (pp. 125-147).

No expense has been incurred in account of military defences in the colony, and the only colonial military expenditure is that for the mounted police, amounting in 1846 to £5880 10s. 4d.

The amount paid for gratuities to officers and soldiers, out of colonial funds, for guarding convicts employed on public works for the colony was in 1846, £1027 6s. 11d.

Legislation (pp. 147-157).

The reports on the Acts passed by the Legislative Council in 1846 are contained in Sir George Gipps' Despatch, No. 130, of the 26th June, 1846, and my own Despatch, No. 10, of the 9th January, 1847.

Councils and Assemblies (pp. 157-163).

No observations on this head seem necessary.

Civil Establishment (pp. 163-359).

This head appears to require no report.

Security for Discharge of Duties (pp. 359-369).

This head appears to require no report.

Pensions (pp. 369-374).

The Pension List shows an increase in 1846. The pensions payable in the colony were, in—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1845 ............... | 619 | 17 | 10 |
| 1846 ............... | 664 | 2 | 6 |

Recapitulation of the Establishment (pp. 374-377).

No observations seem necessary.

Foreign Consuls (pp. 377-379).

There are only two consuls in the colony, French and American.

Population (pp. 379-437).

A census of the colony was taken on the 2nd March, 1846, of which a general summary will be found at page 382. The population was shown at that date to be 189,609 souls (exclusive of Port Essington), being an increase, during the preceding five years, of 58,753 souls.

Ecclesiastical Returns (pp. 437-459).

The number of clergymen receiving salaries from the Government in the year 1846 was 141, being an increase of 27 on the previous year.

The amount secured for public worship, under Schedule C of the 5th and 6th Victoria, c. 76, is distributed under the arrangement sanctioned by the Secretary of State's Despatch, No. 19, of the 17th January, 1846.

Education (pp. 459-475).

No alteration has been made in the method of providing for education in the colony.

The number of schools is stated at page 473, to be 394, being 27 more than there were in 1845. The number of scholars is also increased by 2517.

Exchange, Moneys, &c. (pp. 475-495).

The coin in the colony was, in—

| | |
|---|---|
| 1845 ....... ........ | £875,166 |
| 1846 ............... | 847,316 |

The paper money in circulation was, in—

| | |
|---|---|
| 1845 .............. | £196,310 |
| 1846 .............. | 210,219 |

Exchange has been for the most part at par.

Imports and Exports (pp. 495 533),

The imports (Port Phillip included) were, in—

| | |
|---|---|
| 1845 .............. | £1,233,854 |
| 1846 .............. | 1,630,522 |

The exports (Port Phillip included), were, in—

| | |
|---|---|
| 1845 .............. | £1,555,986 |
| 1846 .............. | 1,487,258 |

The export of wool from the whole colony was, in—

| | lbs. | Value. |
|---|---|---|
| 1845............ | 17,364,734 | £1,009,242 |
| 1846............ | 16,479,520 | 1,019,985 |

The value of tallow exported was, in—

| | |
|---|---|
| 1845 .............. | £102,746 |
| 1846 .............. | 28,107 |

The great decrease in the value of tallow exported appears to have arisen from the great deficiency of the natural grasses in the greater part of the year 1846, and the consequent impossibility of obtaining fat stock, which of course, is the only stock fit for boiling down and converting into tallow. The return of favourable seasons, the low price of wool in the European markets, and the high price of labour prevailing in the colony, will probably restore this item to its former large amount.

Agriculture (pp. 533-539).

The returns of produce and live stock will be found at page 534; but it is doubtful whether the agricultural tables can be depended upon for accuracy.

Manufactures, Mines, and Fisheries (pp 539-545.)

The manufacture of tweed cloth in the colony is progressively improving; and the working of the copper mine at Molong; in the western district of the colony, has been lately commenced with some prospect of success.

Grants of Land (pp. 545-553.)

No observation seems necessary in respect to grants; an improvement is shown in the amount received for the sale of land:—

| | £ |
|---|---|
| In 1845 it was .......... | 18,451 |
| In 1846 .............. | 28,255 |

Gaols and Prisoners (pp. 553-575).

The following returns of the comparative state of crime in the colony will be found interesting:—

Convictions in the Supreme Court.

| | 1845. | 1846. |
|---|---|---|
| Murder ................. | 8 | 7 |
| Other felonies.......... | 190 | 173 |
| Misdemeanours ........... | 42 | 44 |

Convictions in Courts of Quarter Sessions.

| | 1845. | 1846. |
|---|---|---|
| Felonies .... ............ | 303 | 350 |
| Misdemeanors .... ........ | 51 | 77 |
| Criminals executed......... | 3 | 1 |
| Civil cases tried in the Supreme Court .... .. .. ... .... | 178 | 197 |
| Of which the number of undefended, or short cases, was . | 26 | 26 |

Miscellaneous Returns (pp. 575-594).

A variety of returns is given at the end of the Blue Book, as printed for the Legislative Council of the colony. A table of the contents of them will be found in page 576, and they disclose a great body of useful statistical information.

In conclusion I have the gratification of feeling justified in stating my belief that the colony is in a thriving condition; and provided it is blessed with favourable seasons, and the increase in the labouring population which is now so much required, there appears to me to be every reason to hope for the continuance of its prosperity.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Tuesday, 14.—Morning, strong gusty wind, veering south-east to east-north-east; heavy clouds and some spittings of rain; between 11 and 12 o'clock some extremely heavy rains;—afterward cleared up and became very warm and muggy. About sunset moderate north-east wind sprang up and blew fresh during the evening: cloudy and some light showers.

Wednesday, 15.—Strong north breezes all forenoon, and occasional rain; P.M., sunshine, but very thick around horizon, and distant thunder at times; wind strong and gusty. After four o'clock a remarkably low dense scud came over from north with amazing swiftness; frequent thunder and lightning. Between 5·30 and 6 o'clock, violent rain with lightning, and strong gusts from north by east. At 6·15 (barometer at 29·310) a sudden change of wind to north-west by west, boisterous, and brought with it torrents of rain; at 6·20 wind shifted to south-west, and the whole body of the storm appeared to return upon us, and passed over in an east and north-east direction, attended with most vivid lightning and continual thunderings and heavy rain. Before 7 o'clock storm had passed—western sky was clear, and wind had dropped. Evening light cool west-south-west airs, and beautiful starry sky; incessant lightnings thoughout the eastern horizon till after 1 o'clock.

Thursday, 16.—Strong west wind early, increased A.M. to very strong gales, which continued all day; atmosphere dry and clear; small cirrous clouds. After 7 o'clock a sudden calm for half an hour, then set in again to blow heavily.

Friday, 17.—A lovely morning—light airs and calms; middle part, blew strong from westward; latter part, moderate. Cloudless sky all day and night.

Saturday, 18.—Calms and light breezes, and clear blue sky through this day; bright sunny weather. Evening partial clouds.

Sunday, 19.—Morning calm and bright;—after eleven o'clock north-east breezes sprang up; blew freshly afternoon, and exceedingly coarsely all the evening. Air damp and unhealthy.

Monday, 20.—Calm till 8 o'clock, clear, and a powerful sun; light north-west breezes till 11, and then came strong squalls from north by west; at 11·50, violent gales of hot wind from north-west commenced, and continued to blow with great force and oppressive heat (with the exception of a partial abatement between 1·30 and 2 o'clock) till near four o'clock, veering north-west to west by north. After 4, moderated and grew cooler; about 5·20 wind shifted to due south, and blew very fresh and cool till 9—10, when began to die away. For two hours—viz., 12·30 to 2·30, thermometer in shade kept at 89·; barometer kept falling slightly till one o'clock, (to 29·420) afterward gradually rose. Night calm, and clear starry sky.

OCCUPATION OF CROWN LANDS WITHIN THE SETTLED DISTRICTS.

(From yesterday's Government Gazette.)

COLONIAL Secretary's Office, Sydney, 21st November, 1848.—With reference to the regulations published on the 29th March last, His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has directed it to be notified, that any person now in actual licensed occupation of Crown Lands in the Settled Districts, who before the 31st December next, may make application to purchase any portion not less than thirty acres thereof, will be permitted to occupy on the same terms and on the same rent as at present, the section of which the land applied for forms part, until such portion of land shall have been measured and offered for sale, and an opportunity shall have thus been afforded to him of acquiring the fee simple.

Sections of land, of which any portion may be required for sale under the terms of this notice, will not be let under the pre-emptive right conferred by clause 16 of the regulations of the 29th March last; nor will they be again obtainable on lease, even though no part of them be actually sold. In all such cases those portions of sections which may have been put up for sale and not bid for, or on which the deposit shall have been forfeited, will be kept open to selection for purchase without competition under the provisions of the Land Sales Act, 5 and 6 Vic., cap. 36, and the regulations thereon founded, of the 1st March, 1843. The remaining portions of the sections will be reserved, until required for sale, for the use of the adjoining holders of land in fee simple, as a common.

The licensing sessions will be held at the Police Office at noon on Tuesday next, the 28th instant.

NIGHT LICENSES. — IMPORTANT. — In the course of the proceedings before the Police Court yesterday, Captain Innes addressed Mr. Nichols, stating, that although it might scarcely be fair to seek an opinion of his, yet he should feel obliged by his favouring him with his opinion on a point relative to a night license. It would be recollected that a decision had been given, that a night license was a privilege granted to a house for the convenience of the public, and not for the benefit of the party licensed. Consequently, in a case where a party had obtained the transfer of a general license, it was held, that a night license for the house went with the other, and an information for selling after hours preferred against a new occupant for selling after hours was dismissed. A case had now come under his notice where a publican removed to a new house, and the one which he had left was now closed. This party claimed to sell after hours under a license he had taken out for the premises he had left. He (Captain I.) was of opinion that he could not do so, and that whilst any new occupant of the house removed from, had the right of the license, he must take out a fresh one for the house he now resided in. Mr. Nichols expressed his concurrence in the view taken by his Worship.

APPOINTMENTS.—His Excellency the Governor has appointed the undermentioned gentlemen to be magistrates of the territory and of the city of Sydney, viz.:—Daniel Egan, Esq., Alderman for Bourke Ward, Sydney; and John Brown, Esq., Alderman for Macquarie Ward, Sydney.

PORT PHILLIP ORPHAN IMMIGRATION COMMITTEE AND BOARD OF GUARDIANS.—His Excellency the Governor has appointed a Committee, of the following gentlemen, to superintend the apprenticing of a number of orphans of both sexes, shortly expected to arrive at Port Phillip from Ireland, and to act as their guardians, viz.:—The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Melbourne, the Right Rev. Dr. Goold, Edward Curr, Esq., the Very Rev. P. B. Geoghegan, Vicar General, the Rev. Irvine Hetherington, William Lonsdale, Esq., Sub-Treasurer; John Patterson, Esq., Acting Immigration Agent; Robert Williams Pohlman, Esq., Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates; James Hunter Ross, Esq., Andrew Russell, Esq., James Simpson, Esq., and the Rev. A. C. Thompson.

POLICE OFFICE.—The police business yesterday was disposed of by Mr. W. A. Miles, Captain Innes, and Mr. Towns. Mr. A. T. Wilshire, the second magistrate summoned on the roster, did not break through his usual rule of non-attendance. The magistrates summoned for to-day are Messrs. J. Alexander and D. Allan.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.—A man named Donald Gunn, residing in Clarence-street, was yesterday before the Police Court, charged with having, on the preceding evening, most violently assaulted his wife. Gunn, it appeared, was taken into custody at the instance of Mr. Surgeon Maberly, who, on being called in to attend her, found her, from the ill usage she had received, in so dangerous a state, that serious apprehensions exist as to her recovery. On Gunn's being apprehended, he enquired if his wife was yet dead? and a negative reply being given, regretted she was not. The prisoner was remanded to the gaol for seven days.

TALLOW.—We are informed that 865 sheep, belonging to Mr. George Bowman, which were recently boiled down by Messrs. Prentice and Nott, yielded the high average of 27lbs. 1 oz. of tallow each.—Maitland Mercury.

National Library of Australia http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-page1514433

CARELESS DRIVING.—A cab driver, named Michael Brady, was yesterday sentenced to pay a fine of 40s. and 2s. 6d. costs, or go three months to gaol, for careless driving. The prosecution was at the instance of Inspector Pearce, who stated that at about one o'clock that morning, the defendant and another cab-driver were coming in opposite directions along Pitt-street, and when opposite the Shakspeare Tavern, the poles of their vehicles came in contact. Brady was drunk at the time, and secured his being confined in the watch-house, and brought before the Court under the present procedure, instead of by summons, in consequence of his giving the Inspector considerable insolence, and refusing to drive his coach off; and it seemed that Pearce was ultimately compelled to mount the box and do so. The defendant threw all the blame of the collision on the second cabdriver, and whom he considered ought to at least be before the Court as well as himself. He was informed that in this desire he would not be disappointed, as an information had been filed.

FITZROY DOWNS.—We learn from parties who have just reached this neighbourhood from the Balonne, having left the river within the last twelve days, that a station of Mr. M'Pherson's, on the Fitzroy Downs, had been recently rushed by the blacks, and Mr. M'P.'s men fairly driven off, four of the men losing their lives in saving the sheep. Mr. M'Pherson was not at the station at the time, but met his men as he was proceeding thither from Sydney, and immediately turned them back, intending to re-occupy the station; it was thought, however, that he would be unable to hold his ground against the aborigines.—Maitland Mercury.

Letters for town delivery must be posted by eight o'clock A.M., and half-past 1 o'clock P.M.; and for the despatch on the same day for the country, at four o'clock, P.M. JAMES RAYMOND, Post-master-General."

Thomas Phillips, per John 3, for robbery; Bathurst Bench. Robert Wellington, per Roslyn Castle 3, being unable to support himself; Windsor Bench. William Henry Jones, alias James Buscolar, alias John Baskerville, per Lady Nugent, for being absent from his district; Windsor Bench. Thomas James, per Parkfield, for assault; Singleton Bench. Henry Toffts, per Bussorah Merchant 1, for disorderly conduct; Tamworth Bench. James Lockyer, per Charles Kerr, being unable to support himself; Port Stephens Bench. James Smith, per Lady Feversham, being unable to support himself; Penrith Bench.

We are requested to direct the attention of drapers, tailors, and shippers, to Mr. J. Rickards's extensive sale of linen and woollen drapery, slops, Tuscan and straw bonnets, and fancy goods, this day, at eleven o'clock.—Communicated.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our own Correspondent.)

GOULBURN.

WEATHER.—As yet we have had no summer. The weather continues cold, boisterous, and uncertain; and by private letters received from the interior, as well as from South Australia, we find that it is the same in these places. Such unseasonable weather must be the result of some cause which has not yet been brought before the public. On Saturday evening last, about 8 o'clock, we had a most violent storm, and again on Wednesday, the 15th, on which day thunder, hail, rain, and wind, seemed to strive for the mastery. It extended over this and the surrounding districts, and by the arrival of the Herald this evening we find that the storm of Saturday, the 11th, reached to Bathurst, Windsor, and Camden. In consequence of the cold some newly shorn sheep have died; we have also heard of some loss of cattle from the same cause.

LAND SALES.—We perceive that the Government has put up several allotments for sale in Sydney; it would be much to the advantage of the Government to put country lots up for competition in the several localities in which they are situated. Agents in Sydney, however much disposed to give satisfaction, can never act so well as the principal; and for them to take a trip to Sydney per mail would take the cream off the job. Why not put up the Goulburn allotments in Goulburn, and save all this trouble and expense?

CROPS, &c.—There is every appearance of an abundant crop, but at present wheat is a very scarce commodity; 5s. per bushel has been offered for some time back, but none can be obtained, and we believe the stock at the mill is very low.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.—We believe that there is no town out of Sydney in which there are more appeals made to the benevolent feelings of the inhabitants than Goulburn. We are glad to find that the late melancholy event which happened at Gundaroo, and which excited so much sympathy, has been so well responded to in this township.

EMIGRANTS.—The small detachments of immigrants who arrive find employment readily. Many inquiries are making for those accustomed to out-door work. We should be glad to see a continuation for a time of the same description as have arrived.

APPOINTMENT.—J. F. Macarthur, Esq., J.P., has been appointed to take affidavits of parties publishing periodicals in this town.

BOILING DOWN.—The establishment of Messrs. Benjamin and Moses is ready to receive stock. The present is a very favourable season for the bringing stock into condition for the pot. It is a desperate remedy, but the low price of wool and the high rate of wages requires possessors of stock to resort to it.

INQUEST.—There was an inquest held at Wahoo, on the 16th instant, on the body of Mrs. Mortimer, who died in childbirth. It appeared that she anticipated an unfavourable result in the hour of her sorrow, and according to her expectation, she sank under it. A corresponding verdict was returned.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CITY STREETS.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—With your permission we will now finish our observations on this subject. Promising that our former letters, and the storm of Monday, will have opened by this time the eyes of the Corporation to the destructive effects of their present mode of street-making. We left off in our last with a description of the Count de Lille's patent pavement. Since then we have, by the stranding of one of the Corporation boats on our own wharf, been enabled to inspect the metal, which is by no means very friable, and is probably an excellent material for common roads. We have no doubt that it can be cut into cubical or rectangular blocks for the purposes of paving. This blue whyn (I suppose we must call it) was at one time much used in London, but was abandoned for Scotch and Guernsey granite, a much more lasting material.

The probable expense of this sort of paving in Sydney may be as follows:—

| | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|
| First cost per superficial yard .. | 8 | 0 |
| Ten years' repairs at 2d. ditto .. | 1 | 8 |
| Ten years' cleansing at 2d. ditto | 1 | 8 |
| | 11 | 4 |
| Deduct value of old stone ...... | 6 | 0 |
| | 5 | 4 |

The old stone would probably last for twenty or thirty years longer, but we cannot speak positively on that point, which will require lengthened experience and observation.

As to the wooden pavement, we think it may be laid down for a very moderate sum. An extensive order at the Woodstock saw mills would we have no doubt be very acceptable, or the Corporation could have the timber delivered in Sydney, and saw it under their own directions.

| | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|
| A piece of iron-bark eighteen feet long and six inches square would suffice for a square yard, and would cost say ...................... | 3 | 6 |
| (Or perhaps considerably less.) | | |
| Sawing into blocks ................ | 0 | 6 |
| Pins .............................. | 1 | 0 |
| Fastening together and laying down.... | 2 | 6 |
| | 7 | 6 |

This would last for at least half a century with trifling repairs, and be easily removed in making and repairing sewers, laying gas or water pipes, &c. The corporation, by their own showing are now maintaining the streets at the expense of several thousand of pounds per annum, and we ask you to what purpose. Why, the meanest village in our native country has its streets paved, and regularly swept. Yet Sydney, the capital of the southern hemisphere, with a population of 50,000 people, in a hot climate too, has streets which would disgrace the meanest village in England. And among other evils often cause nearly a total cessation of business during a storm. The destruction to goods of various descriptions, by these storms—that is, by the corporation grape shot and dust, is estimated at £10,000 per annum. The extra washing must of itself be at least £2000 per annum. It is notorious that the late muggy weather generated scarlatina to a considerable extent, and if some precautions are not speedily adopted, we should not be surprised to hear that a pestilent typhus has been engendered.

We ask you where does all the water go which falls on the streets? Does much of it not soak down into your cellars and under your houses, where it remains for a time creating that damp heavy smell so prejudicial to health; whereas, were the streets paved as we have described the water would be carried off in a great degree until proper sewers were constructed, and in fact the site of the city is so admirably chosen, that by simply opening water plugs at certain points in the streets, with a short leather tube the whole street might be washed out in regular drawing room style, at the most trifling expense.

Talking of paving blocks, a wag suggests that the Council ought to lay their heads together for that purpose. This is too bad, although Horace has it that—

> Joking decides great things,
> Stronger and better oft than earnest can.

Gentlemen, six or seven years ago we spent our last £20 in making models, drawings, and descriptions of the most approved modes of sewering, street-making, &c., but the Corporation of that time were so much occupied with their insignia of office—the cut of their coat, &c., that we not only did not receive any attention, but positive discourtesy after all efforts to enlighten them. We need scarcely say that like poor Cobbett we retired to our garret and mourned as much over our £20 as he did over his three-halfpennies spent foolishly on a salt herring. We sincerely hope that they will now take to mending their ways as soon as possible, and will at least give us credit for endeavouring to dispel either ignorance or apathy.

By-the-by, what of the plough. Have they bought the bullocks yet? Bullocks, we believe, are best where there are stumps in the land; pray, is the plough to be used in cutting down hills, as the Parramatta District Council use it? or, is it to be employed on the streets (so the advertisement expressed it,) for the purpose of resuscitating the old metal? Why, the fellows are regular resurrectionists. Oh, no, it must be an economical dodge. Good! but who holds and who drives? for

> He who by the plough would thrive,
> Himself must either hold or drive.

Now mind, we will not have the metal disturbed, as it will form an excellent foundation for our pavement.

We could form an estimate of the amount of streets which they could have paved with the thousands which has passed through their hands, but we must leave this until we come to talk of the sewerage.

Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

HODGE, THE PLOUGHMAN'S BOY.

Kissing Point, November 21.

P.S.—Perhaps we should have noticed the efforts of two scientific gentlemen on behalf of our subject. The first is Mr. Hume, the architect, who proposed wooden kerbing, or something of that sort, scarcely worth mentioning; the other was that of a gentleman whose name we forget. He proposed making concrete streets. This is a very doubtful plan, and has many positive disadvantages. In short, it would not do. He is perhaps not aware that Sir John Macneil used concrete as a foundation for the Highgate Archway Road, London.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—As I have not been in the habit of reading the reports of the proceedings of the City Council, it was not until I accidently took up your paper of Friday last, that I acquired a knowledge of the reasoning by which the collective wisdom of the city has hitherto annually come to the conclusion of granting £600 to its Mayor in the name of a salary.

I see no statement (in the debates there reported) of a single matter of fact that is adduced in support of the grant, that is strictly founded in truth. And I deny that there exists any analogy whatever between the office of Mayor of this City and that of the Lord Mayor of London, or indeed of any other city, borough, or place, in the United Kingdom which gives a salary to its Mayor.

I had certainly heard it mentioned casually more than once, that the Mayor of Sydney was expected to contribute somewhat liberally to public charities, to entertain the citizens with whom his office might bring him more immediately into contact, &c., &c.; but I looked upon all such reasons as the mere passing opinions of individuals, and thought that the corporate body had much more substantial grounds for passing such a vote.

The Lord Mayor of London is not once in one hundred instances at least, a resident with his family in London, or within 20 or perhaps 100 miles of it, and his constant presence in the city during his Mayoralty is so absolutely necessary, that the Mansion house was built, and is maintained in its household (servants and every thing included), as a residence for himself and his family at the City expense, in order that he may be enabled to bring his household to London, and continue with his family, without being subjected to the inconvenience, and perhaps uncertainty, of seeking out a suitable residence for them. The sum of money appropriated as the salary of the Lord Mayor, and erroneously so called, is for the purpose of defraying the expense and charges of that household, and is not paid over to the Lord Mayor, but is controlled and managed by a board appointed for that purpose. The Lord Mayor has no control over it whatever; he can no more expend one shilling of it in any public or private charity, or appropriate any part of it in the defraying of the expenses of the public or private banquets than any one of his waiting gentlemen can do.

The public banquets, that is to say, the great banquet in Guildhall, and the Easter banquet and ball at the Mansion House, are considered as City corporation banquets, and the Lord Mayor only contributes towards them as his spirit of liberality induces him to do (but to which, however, he is expected to, and invariably does, contribute very largely.) And so far only as he does con- [illegible] tribute is he allowed to exercise an influence in the arrangements and the number of guests to be invited. And the number of tickets that the committee choose to place at his disposal for distribution as he may think proper, is also regulated accordingly.

These entertainments are only open to the corporate officers, the livery, such citizens and persons as the committee invite, and such personal friends of the Lord Mayor and corporate officers as they who are awarded tickets of admission by the committee may think proper to send them to. There is of course a great mixture of company at these entertainments; they are looked upon as general gatherings of the citizens that must be endured, and they give the frequenters of the certainly more polite entertainments generally in the west an unfavourable opinion of the City decorum.

The Lord Mayor is expected to give two other public entertainments at other quarters of the year, and he sometimes gives an extra one or two to the Company and the ward that he belongs to. These are at his own private expense, and to which he invites only those he pleases; they are given at some one of the City Companies' Halls, or at the principal taverns in the City, (not at the Mansion House;) they are considered and called his public entertainments, and are somewhat more select than the two first mentioned.

The great expense of the office of Lord Mayor consists in what are called his private entertainments, which are given monthly at the Mansion House, to from 50 to 150 or more guests, and to which are occasionally invited the British and Foreign Ministers, Ambassadors, Royal Princes, and other illustrious persons, to meet the leading men and political characters of the City. At these entertainments the whole of the City plate is displayed, and they are given altogether in a style of magnificence that vies with, if it does not equal, the splendour exhibited at any of the entertainments given at the royal palaces.

I have borne a high office in the Corporation of the City of London, and was connected with the making up and getting passed of a great portion of its accounts for three years, and I can state positively that no part of the "so called" salary of the Lord Mayor ever goes into his hands, or is in any way within his gift: and that whatever sum of money may appear in any subscription list or charity, comes from his own private purse, unless he lends his name thereto for the purpose of deceiving the public, which I, for one, will in no wise presume.

The citizens of London are not such fools as to submit to being taxed for the purpose of giving a Lord Mayor, or any other individual, the privilege of expending any part of the funds raised thereby at his own free will and pleasure, whether in charity, or in being invited in return to the pleasure of partaking of a sop out of it. Any man who knows anything of the character of a citizen of London, or who has ever attended at or read the proceedings of the Common Council, the Livery meetings, or the ward motes, when a matter either of finance or taxation has been in debate, must very soon feel convinced that "the citizens" are such obstinate sticklers on those occasions that they would have "risen en masse" to have protested against such a measure, whatever the citizens of the city at the antipodes might be pleased to do in a contrary spirit.

To conclude—as I am not anxious to trespass longer on your time or patience (or your column, if you choose) than I can possibly help—I must deny that the citizens of Sydney generally are in favour of giving the Mayor what ought to be, and is looked upon by them, as an unnecessary salary for his duties (not his services) during the year. Scarcely one person to whom I have spoken on the subject has approved of the measure; and to show my own opinion on the matter, I will take the opportunity of informing you that I have never yet given my vote to any Councillor who has voted for the granting of such salary, unless it may have been on the first formation of the Council, when I could not of course have been aware of what was not then even in embryo. As a citizen, however, I pledge myself never to vote for a candidate for the councillorship who does not pledge himself to set his face against such a measure. My own opinion is that if a "rule of proportion" is to be adopted with respect to salaries to city officers, the Aldermen (provided they do their duties) ought to consider themselves entitled to £100 per annum, and the Common Councilmen to £300; and I should scarcely feel surprised (if the Council have no better reason than because men of some standing and consideration in society are necessarily brought before the public to fill its municipal offices they ought to be indemnified at the public expense in all their acts, both of benevolence, and folly, or extravagance), to see such a measure shortly brought forward and carried.

COLONIAL OFFICE REPLY TO SIR WILLIAM MOLESWORTH.

(From the Spectator, July 29.)

THE reply which Mr. Hawes consented to make for the Colonial Office to Sir William Molesworth, has created a sensation never produced by the member for Lambeth's happiest speeches. Although politicians in and out of Parliament have been well aware of the difference between Mr. Hawes out of office and in office, and were therefore prepared for a great extent of officialism in the quondam purist, the speech went so far beyond all expectations in its peculiar traits as to excite unbounded surprise. We will not venture to characterise it; we will not condescend to employ the only epithets applicable to his conduct; but the averments of which he was the mouthpiece must not be allowed to pass muster by the mere force of their audacity.

Sir William Molesworth applied to the present colonial system the test of the advantages derived from it; showing that with the same resources and the same expenditure the government ought to secure for the country a vast increase of advantages. In reply, Mr. Hawes resorted to the most elaborate and curious application of the principle of "cross questions and crooked answers:" he met each of the most damaging arguments with some assertion, if true in itself, entirely divorced from its true bearing; or with an assertion that was meant to surprise members out of their belief by an excess of groundlessness so incredible that it was easier to believe the assertion than to imagine the unscrupulousness of the utterer.

Sir William Molesworth had shown that the system, costly and imperfect, by no means realises all the advantages that it ought to yield: to which Mr. Hawes replies, that it is "the most successful that the world has ever witnessed." Sir William meant the official system: Mr. Hawes points to the nett result of the conflict between the national energies and the official system that impedes but cannot destroy those energies. Other nations have been more disastrous in their colonial government; but how does that prove that our system is the best that we could devise? According to Mr. Hawes's mode of argument, the ligatures which bound the legs of Lightfoot, in the fairy tale, would have been the cause of his fleetness, since he won the race in spite of them.

Without official aid, the early colonists of America laid the foundations of the great republic which we see; their method involving the emigration of incorporated communities, with self-government: Sir William Molesworth advised a revival of that principle. Mr. Hawes replies, that the Old England settlements underwent "violent vicissitudes and misfortunes,"—which had not been denied: and with that he contrasts the modern system exemplified—by what?—by South Australia and New Zealand; colonies founded in opposition to the wishes, views, and intrigues of the Colonial Office, and succeeding in spite of those intrigues. They merely survived the [illegible] of the system whose success he adduced them to prove. Restore, says Sir William, the plan which made settlements complete [illegible] and gave them vigour to defend th[illegible] And truly the colonies thus founded [illegible] survived the "violent vicissitudes" [illegible] they were exposed, but were able to [illegible] the whole power of England. No, [illegible] Hawes,—taking advantage of smoot[illegible] and more peaceful circumstances [illegible] better, and to prove [illegible] he brings as [illegible] settlements [illegible] that have survived by [illegible] the system.

His use of these two colonies is remarkable. Of South Australia he did not scruple to say that the "pet colony" would have been bankrupt but for the interference of the Colonial Office: it was transferred from its "amateur" managers to the Colonial Office, and "from that moment became one of the most flourishing colonies;" the notorious fact being, that its bankruptcy was inflicted by its Governor, the only officer of the Colonial Office in the settlement, and that its success is entirely owing to so much of the plan and such of the early settlers as survived the disastrous and malignant endeavours of the Colonial Office to mar the experiment. Can Mr. Hawes be the only man in England ignorant of all this?

His allusion to New Zealand is not less astounding. He says that "he does not know any instance of a more successful colony." Now, New Zealand was founded in spite of "the system;" two Governors appointed by "the system" ruined the colony; the misconduct was so flagrant, the disaster was so frightful, the appeals of the colonists were so unanswerable, that the appointment of a competent Governor became a mere act of decency: a Governor trained in South Australia was sent; he reversed the policy of the two Colonial Office Governors; and, by the help of extraordinary energy in the colonists, he has in some measure retrieved the colony; though it is still a prey to a monstrous system of Chancery suits created by the first two Governors, and to an aboriginal war invited by those two officials. In endeavouring to prove the "success" and progress of the colony, Mr. Hawes went so far as to compare its present state with that to which it had been reduced by Captain Fitzroy! New Zealand was prohibited by "the system," and was then nearly destroyed by it: Mr. Hawes vaunts it as a proof of success.

The Colonial Office is accused of being despotic—where it can be so: to prove the reverse, Mr. Hawes indicates the "responsible government" in Canada, extorted from "the system" at the expense of insurrection, war, and treasure. The Office is accused of being arbitrary: Mr. Hawes describes a proceeding in which Lord Grey sent a constitution, like that which he revoked in New Zealand, for the consideration of New South Wales; and so invited an ignominious rejection of his lefthanded offer by that intelligent community. To prove that the Office is not despotic and arbitrary, as it had been described to be in British Guiana, Van Diemen's Land, and other colonies, Mr. Hawes points to historical instances, in which its despotism was defeated in Canada, and its twaddling was snubbed in New South Wales.

A small matter painfully illustrates the spirit in which the obsequious Under-Secretary spoke. Sir William Molesworth had complained of the royalties on mines, which, in breach of all good faith, the government had latterly resolved to reserve in South Australia: Mr. Hawes declared that the royalties had been relinquished. "Within the last three or four days?" asked Sir William Molesworth. "Not so recently," was the reply. How recently then? If not three or four, how many days had elapsed? Not so many, we believe, but what the act of honesty was still an undivulged secret.

Those who saw and heard Mr. Hawes on Tuesday last remembered the time when he used to figure among colonial Reformers: the once independent member was now seen "humbly begging" to share the ignominy of a public department with an Earl at its head. Why the independent member for Lambeth should be so ready to accept office, puzzled many: it is now observed that he is more familiar with rank and courtly distinctions. It also perplexed people to account for his being selected, as they were not aware that he had been eminent in the conduct of colonial affairs: he is now acknowledged to display a conspicuous and extraordinary aptitude to serve the Colonial Office. The office certainly never before possessed a servant so absolutely at its disposal. Often during his speech, the question occurred, whether he knew what he was saying? People would have felt it a moral relief to impute to him a very culpable ignorance; but in the absence of that alternative, painful as it is to see a man who has been respected overwhelmed with not unintelligible blushes, it would have been a far less distressing sight than to witness an off-hand fluency that provoked compassion and a boldness of demeanour that did not inspire respect.

REGULATION OF PUBLIC MEETINGS.—A sense is growing in France and England, that while discussion is left perfectly free, it is desirable to keep it distinct from plotting, which pursues its unhallowed councils under pretext of discussion. The French Assembly has been discussing a law of clubs; and M. Coquerel, one of the metropolitan deputies, threw out a suggestion that clubs should be recognised, but required to deposit caution-money with government; which would, as it were, be taking security from revolution that it should behave respectably. At a meeting of Chartists in the Cripplegate Theatre, this week, for the benefit of the Irish rebels who are enjoying the London season, the chairman furnished a very satisfactory illustration of the advantage which would accrue from affixing a definite responsibility on public meetings. He seemed to feel an unusual degree of moral responsibility, declined to sanction or permit any overt "sedition," and retired from the chair; a course which manifestly checked the seditious tendencies of the crowd. Now, by enacting the responsibility which Mr. Kenealey volunteered, a great step would be gained towards the maintenance of order. The difficulty in respect to public meetings is, to combine perfect freedom for lawful discussion with responsibility for going beyond the bounds of lawful discussion. By making simple attendance at a public meeting without a duly appointed chairman illegal, and then making the chairman primarily responsible for the conduct of the meeting,—with power to clear himself by giving up a real offender,—you would fix a definite and easily fulfilled responsibility on every one present; would define the duty of police; and would yet leave all lawful discussion without check or hinderance. It appears to us that such a law would add weight and influence to all legitimate public discussion.—Spectator.

"EMIGRATION THE REMEDY."—Last evening was produced at the Olympic Theatre, what was termed in the bills a "new domestic dramatic sketch," entitled "Emigration the Remedy." More properly it might have been termed a lecture upon the advantages of emigration [illegible], with graphic illustrations. Under what[illegible]ever reason given, however, this little piece [illegible] is one calculated to be of useful influence, a[illegible]d was so ingeniously put upon the stage th[illegible], redeeming the dulness of the subject, it commanded general attention and applause, amounting almost to enthusiasm, at the conclusion. The "argument" is simple enough:—two poor fellows, one an agricultural labourer, the other a mechanic—are starving for want of employment; but are induced by the statements of a return colonist to emigrate to South Australia. The scene changes at the bidding of the wand of the Spirit of Industry (Miss St. George), to the land of promise, where all is sunshine and plenty, with happy wives and smiling children. A general dance concludes the performances. The principal parts in the serious business were well given by Messrs. A. Younge, Leigh Murray, and H. Butler; and Mrs. Leigh Murray. By way of foil, a cockney "gent" was introduced, enacted by Mr. Cowell, who preached of fraternity, universal "suffering," and equitable "destruction," of property, as the only panacea for existing mis[illegible]; but he was speedily ejected by the [illegible] consent of the better disposed portion of his hearers, [illegible] and off the stage. This little politico-[illegible] sketch was received with loud [illegible], and the author, Mr. Stoqueller, [illegible] for at the close.—Morning Chronicle.

[illegible] stated that when [illegible] making his way to [illegible] shelter of his [illegible] found out [illegible] any [illegible] curred [illegible] unfor- [illegible] mind [illegible] d it is [illegible] conduct is [illegible] nised [illegible] one [illegible] Hulme [illegible] is great that no countryman of the rebel chief was induced to betray him. Hulme has, I hear, given up his situation, and I have no doubt has acted wisely in doing so, for his life would not have been worth an hour's purchase had he ventured into this neighbourhood again. And now that the rebellion of 1848 is at an end—now that the whole affair has broken like a soap bubble—now, when every one admits that the government has most effectual power to overwhelm opposition and extinguish revolt—now, after all men see the foolishness of an attempt which could never be successful, and which even the most sanguine knew to be desperate, when the misery which it inflicts and the wickedness it exemplifies are made patent by results to the whole world, will it be believed that sympathy for the man who has led this movement, who has gloried in the crime of treason, who madly rushed upon a fate which might have involved the lives of thousands with his own—that sympathy for this man is becoming an universal sentiment? Expressions of sorrow at his capture are in every person's mouth, male and female, young and old, rich and poor. The hunted and outlawed criminal of last week has this week become a patriot and martyr again. His virtues are magnified till they become heroic, and his faults are entirely forgotten. There is no moderation or love of justice in the mind of Ireland. Reason and common sense are alike forgotten by this impulsive people, because Smith O'Brien is sincere in his conduct, and his ancestors were kings in the land. A general impression appears to have prevailed yesterday throughout this part of the country that some attempt would be made in Dublin on behalf of the rebel chief, and in consequence the railway stations were crowded with people awaiting the news brought down by the trains. Now that the chance of a real rebellion is over, men appear to think seriously that they ought to have turned out, and probably you will now hear many a loud protestation that they would have fought had it not been for the priests, or for some other cause which never existed, but which their ingenuity in fabrication will readily suggest. For months the Irish people have been yelling out their defiances of the English government and nation. The moment at last came for testing all this "sound and fury," and then it was found to signify nothing, or at least something very near it. Now, when the danger is over, or believed to be so, the spirit of disaffection re-appears in the shape of sympathy for Mr. S. O'Brien.—Times' Correspondent.
